coursework may include keyboarding and data information processing, medical terminology, introduction to human diseases, and presentation skills.